Library Assignment FOR Week 2

1) Before Lab, visit the periodical room of Atkins Library (second floor) or access the journals via the internet. Browse through the psychology journals from the last two years and find an article that interests you. You must select from the psychology journals listed on the handout. Read the article so that you are familiar with it.

2) On a piece of paper write out a reference citation for the article that you have chosen. Write out the problem and hypothesis and identify through an operational definition how the constructs in the hypothesis statement are measured. If the article reports two or three experiments, just take the problem and hypothesis from the first experiment.

(Hint: A reference citation lists information about the article using the following format.

Please read the article thoroughly and be able to talk about it. Do not choose an article that you do not understand!!
